

This is a detailed black and white line drawing of a traditional Chinese architectural model, likely a miniature for a temple or palace. The model is oriented vertically on the page. It features multiple vertical sections with decorative elements, including a central section with a grid pattern and a section with a series of small circles. The drawing is oriented vertically on the page.